KETUA PENGARAH PENDAFTARAN NEGARA & ANOR

HIGH COURT MALAYA, KUALA LUMPUR B
AZIAH ALI J
[JUDICIAL REVIEW NO: R1-25-363-2009]
10 JANUARY 2011

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW: Judicial review - Decision of Director General of National Registration rejecting application to omit word "Islam" from identity card - Whether decision amenable to judicial review - Whether within purview of Syariah Court C

CIVIL PROCEDURE: Extension of time - Application for leave - Six-months delay in filing application for judicial review of decision of Director General of National Registration - Decision rejecting application to omit word "Islam" from identity card - Forty-day time period for filing judicial review application stipulated under O. 53 r. 3(6) RHC 1980 - Whether compliance of 40-day time period mandatory - Whether delay justified - Whether resort could be had to O. 1A RHC 1980 D E

CONSTITUTIONAL LAW: Jurisdiction - High Court - Judicial review of decision of Director General of National Registration rejecting application to omit word "Islam" from identity card - Whether subject matter within jurisdiction of Syariah Court F

The applicant sought for an extension of time under O. 53 r. 3(6) Rules of the High Court 1980 ('RHC') to apply for judicial review to quash the decision of the Director General of National Registration ('the 1st respondent') who had rejected the G applicant's application to amend his name and omit the word "Islam" from his identity card. The rejection was made following the applicant's failure to submit a certified copy of a letter confirming he was not a Muslim from the Islamic Religious Department or a like order from the Syariah Court. The applicant H had made the application to the 1st respondent on the ground that he was brought up as a Hindu and had practiced the Hindu way of life and had never professed Islam. He claimed that although he was born to an Indian Muslim father, his mother was a Hindu and that his parents never married according to Islamic I rites and that he was therefore illegitimate.

A The Attorney General ('AG') objected to the applicant's application for an extension of time on the ground that he failed to satisfactorily justify the delay. Also, that the court had no jurisdiction to hear the subject matter as it fell within the purview of the Syariah Court.

B

The applicant explained the delay on his inability to find a lawyer and his work commitments that made it difficult for him to obtain leave to meet up with his lawyer. Further, the delay caused no prejudice to any party as the matter of his religion was personal C to him. In addition, O. 1A RHC required the court to have regard to the justice of the case and not on technical non compliance of any rules. It was submitted that public interest in ensuring his constitutional right was respected far outweighed the slight delay and that he should not be shut out from this court on account D of the delay.

Held (dismissing the application):

(1) Order 53 r. 3(6) RHC specifically provided that an application for judicial review must be made within 40 days from when the E decision was first communicated to the applicant. The failure to comply with O. 53 r. 3(6) was not merely a technical non-compliance. The mandatory nature of the requirement for compliance within the 40-day time period had been affirmed by case authorities. It followed that an applicant who sought to F impugn a decision of a public authority ought to act promptly. (paras 7 & 8)

(2) There were certain breaches of the rules that were serious enough to go to the very root or foundation of the legal G process. In such breaches, the court was reluctant to exercise its discretion in favour of validating them. In an application for judicial review, compliance with the time frame was fundamental. It went to the starting point, ie, that of jurisdiction to hear the application. Order 1A RHC could not H be relied on to supersede O. 53 r. 3(6) RHC which was a rule that was mandatory in nature. (paras 9 & 10)

(3) The applicant's explanations did not satisfactorily account for the delay. It was immaterial that the delay did not occasion any prejudice to the respondent or a third party which was I not a satisfactory explanation for delay in filing for judicial review. In the circumstances, the application for extension of time ought to be dismissed on that ground alone. Consequently, the court had no jurisdiction to hear the application for leave. (para 11)

(4) The AG's objection on the delay for non-compliance with O. 53 r 3(6) RHC was a valid objection. It was within the AG's right to raise the objection. There was no basis therefore for the applicant's submission that the AG raised the objection merely to prop up the main objection to the application on the ground of jurisdiction. (para 12)

(5) The matters raised by the applicant in support of his contention that he was not a Muslim were matters to be considered and proved before the Syariah Court in accordance with Hukum Syarak. This court had no jurisdiction to determine the matters raised by the applicant in support of his contention that he was not a Muslim. (para 17)

(6) On the authority of the Federal Court decision in Lina Joy lwn. Majlis Agama Islam Wilayah Persekutuan & Yang Lain, the decision of the 1st respondent was not unreasonable and was therefore not amenable to an order of certiorari. It followed that the application was frivolous and vexatious and leave ought not to be granted. (para 18)

JUDGMENT

Aziah Ali J:

Introduction

[1] The applicant was born to an Indian Muslim father. He avers that his mother is a Hindu. According to the applicant his parents were never married according to Islamic rites and he is therefore illegitimate. He was brought up as a Hindu and practices the Hindu way of life and has never professed Islam.

[2] On or about 10 November 2008 the applicant applied to the 1st respondent to amend his name to omit the word 'Islam' from his identity card. On 27 November 2008 the 1st respondent requested the applicant to submit a certified copy of Surat

Pengesahan Bukan Islam from Jabatan Agama Islam or an Order from the Syariah Court. The applicant failed to comply and by letter dated 21 April 2009 the 1st respondent refused the application (exh. P12). According to the 1st respondent's letter the applicant's application had been rejected on the ground that an application for a change of name due to conversion out of Islam must be accompanied by a letter from either the Majlis Agama Islam or the Syariah Court confirming such conversion out of Islam.

[3] By way of this application the applicant applies for judicial review under O. 53 of the Rules of the High Court 1980 ("the RHC") for an order of certiorari to quash the decision of the 1st respondent made vide the letter dated 21 April 2009. However this application was filed on 24 November 2009, a delay of approximately six months. Hence vide prayer 'A' the applicant sought for extension of time to apply for leave. The Attorney General raised objections to the applicant's application for extension of time on the ground that the applicant has failed to satisfactorily explain the delay. The Attorney General further raised the issue that this court has no jurisdiction to hear this matter as the subject matter falls within the jurisdiction of the Syariah Court.

Extension Of Time

[4] Learned Senior Federal Counsel refers to O. 53 r. 3(6) of the RHC which provides as follows:

> Rule 3. Leave. (O. 53, r. 3)
> (6) An application for judicial review shall be made promptly and in any event within 40 days from the date when grounds for the application first arose or when the decision is first communicated to the applicant provided that the Court may, upon application and if it considers that there is a good reason for doing so, extend the period of 40 days.

Learned Senior Federal Counsel submits that pursuant to O. 53 r. 3(6) this application ought to have been filed on or before 31 May 2009. It is submitted that in the absence of an explanation to the court's satisfaction, the application for extension of time ought to be dismissed (Mersing Omnibus Co Sdn Bhd v. The Minister of Labour & Manpower & Anor [1983] 2 CLJ 7; [1983] CLJ (Rep) 266; Wong Koon Seng v. Rahman Hydraulic Tin Bhd & Ors [2003] 5 CLJ 205).

[5] For the applicant learned counsel in his written submissions submits that the delay is explained by the applicant in his inability to find a lawyer and his work commitments. In paras. 8 and 9 of his affidavit in support the applicant avers that he needed time to find a lawyer and his lawyer then needed time to look into his matter and to prepare the cause papers for this application. The applicant avers that he had difficulty getting leave to meet with his solicitor. The applicant further avers that any delay would not cause prejudice to any party that would interfere with good and fair administration as the matter of his religion is personal to him. Counsel submits that O. 1A of the RHC requires the court to have regard to the justice of a particular case and not only to technical non compliance of any of the rules. It is submitted that public interest in ensuring the applicant's constitutional right are respected far outweigh the slight delay (Regina v. Stratford-On-Avon District Council And Another, Ex Parte Jackson [1985] 1 WLR 1319; Tang Kwor Ham & Ors v. Pengurusan Danaharta Nasional Bhd & Ors [2006] 1 CLJ 927). Counsel submits that the objection to the delay is not an appropriate ground to shut out the applicant from this court.

[6] Learned Senior Federal Counsel submits that, save for the flimsy excuse that it took the applicant some time to get assistance from a lawyer and he had difficulty obtaining leave from work, the applicant has not satisfactorily explained the delay. It is submitted that these are not good reasons to justify an extension of time. In the event the court finds the explanation for the delay unsatisfactory, learned Senior Federal Counsel submits that it follows that the court has no jurisdiction to hear the application for leave (Ravindran P Muthukrishnan v. Malaysian Examinations Council [1984] 1 CLJ 232; [1984] 1 CLJ (Rep) 320).

[7] Order 53 r. 3(6) specifically provides that an application for judicial review has to be made within 40 days from when the decision is communicated to the applicant. I am unable to agree with the submissions by counsel for the applicant that failure to comply with O. 53 r. 3(6) is merely a technical non-compliance. In the case of Subramaniam Vythilingam v. The Human Rights

Commission of Malaysia (SUHAKAM) & Ors [2003] 6 CLJ 175 Abdul Malik Ishak J (as His Lordship then was) referred to the stringent mandatory requirements and safeguards in O. 53. His Lordship said as follows:

> It was rightly submitted on behalf of the defendants that by choosing to file enclosure (1), the plaintiff was deliberately attempting to get around the following stringent mandatory requirements and safeguards as enumerated in Order 53 of the RHC:
> (a) the plaintiff would have to apply for leave of the court under Order 53 of the RHC;
> (b) the leave application would have to be filed within 40 days from the date when the grounds of the application first arose; and
> (c) the plaintiff would have to serve his leave application on the Attorney-General's Chambers.

[8] The mandatory nature of the requirement of compliance with the time period specified under O. 53 r. 3(6) is reiterated by Zaleha Zahari JCA and Jeffrey Tan JCA in the case of Menteri Besar Negeri Pahang Darul Makmur v. Seruan Gemilang Makmur Sdn Bhd [2010] 5 CLJ 123.

Zaleha Zahari JCA said as follows:

> The High Court in its judgment was of the view that the 40 days specified under O. 53 r. 3(6) was not rigid. I am of the view the judge erred in ruling that the time frame prescribed by the rules is not rigid. I am in agreement with the appellant's counsel that compliance with the time frame prescribed by the rules is fundamental as it goes to jurisdiction (See Mersing Omnibus Co. Sdn Bhd v. The Minister of Labour & Manpower & Anor [1983] 2 CLJ 7; [1983] CLJ (Rep) 266).

His Lordship Jeffrey Tan JCA said inter alia:

> It is imperative that an application for judicial review is made within time (Ahmad Jefri Mohd Jahri v. Pengarah Kebudayaan & Kesenian Johor & Ors [2008] 6 CLJ 473).

Thus on the abovementioned authorities an applicant who seeks to impugn a decision of a public authority ought to act promptly. Counsel for the applicant relies on the case of Tang Kwor Ham &

Ors v. Pengurusan Danaharta Nasional Bhd & Ors (supra). However the later decision of the Court of Appeal in Menteri Besar Negeri Pahang Darul Makmur v. Seruan Gemilang Makmur Sdn Bhd (supra) reflects the approach of the courts on the issue of compliance of O. 53 r. 3(6).

[9] Certain breaches of the rules are serious in that it may go to the very root or foundation of the legal process. If that happens, the court is reluctant to exercise its discretion in favour of validating that breach (per Abdul Malik Ishak JCA in Malayan Banking Bhd v. Koay Kang Chuwan & Anor [2010] 6 CLJ 172). In respect of an application for judicial review, compliance with the time frame is fundamental. It goes to the starting point, that of jurisdiction to hear the application (see Yahya Kassim v. Kerajaan Malaysia & Anor [1998] 1 CLJ 43).

[10] Counsel for the applicant relies on O. 1A of the RHC. It is worthwhile to refer to the judgment of Zaki Tun Azmi CJ in the case of Duli Yang Amat Mulia Tunku Ibrahim Ismail Ibni Sultan Iskandar Al-Haj v. Datuk Captain Hamzah Mohd Noor & Another Appeal [2009] 4 CLJ 329 wherein His Lordship said as follows:

> The technical non-compliance of any rule may be remedied where there is an accidental omission or oversight by a party. A general provision such as O. 1A RHC is for the court or judge to give heed to justice over technical non-compliance. It must not supersede a mandatory requirement of the Rules. O. 1A RHC cannot be invoked when a party intentionally disregards in complying with the Rules. Otherwise, parties would be encouraged to ignore the Rules.
> In the context of the Rules of the High Court 1980 the phrase "... technical non-compliance ..." is thus a reference to non-compliance with a rule which is not fundamental or mandatory in nature.

Therefore I am of the view that O. 1A cannot be relied on to supersede O. 53 r. 3(6) which is a rule mandatory in nature.

[11] Having considered the explanation for the delay, I find the applicant's explanation that he needed time to find a lawyer and his lawyer needed time to check his matter and his difficulty in getting leave to meet with his solicitor are not satisfactory to account for the delay. In my considered opinion it is immaterial whether the delay does not occasion any prejudice to the respondent or a third party. The submission of no prejudice caused is not a satisfactory explanation for delay in filing for judicial review. I agree with the learned Senior Federal Counsel that the applicant has failed to satisfactorily explain the reason for the approximately six months' delay in making this application. On this ground alone the application for extension of time ought to be dismissed. Consequently the court has no jurisdiction to hear the application for leave. In Abdul Rahman Abdullah Munir & Ors v. Datuk Bandar Kuala Lumpur & Anor [2008] 6 CLJ 805, Abdull Hamid Embong JCA (as His Lordship then was) said that the court may exercise its jurisdiction only upon obligatory compliance with the imperative requirement of time set under O. 53 r. 3 RHC (see also Ravindran v. Malaysian Examinations Council, supra). Whether the application for an order of certiorari has merits or not is irrelevant.

[12] For the reasons stated above I allowed the objection by the Attorney General. The application for extension of time is dismissed. On the submissions by counsel for the applicant that the Attorney General raises objection on the delay merely to prop up the main objection to the application on the ground of jurisdiction, I find the submissions without basis. In my opinion the objection to the delay grounded on non-compliance with O. 53 r. 3(6) is a valid objection and it is within the right of the Attorney General to raise the objection.

[13] In the event that I erred in my decision to refuse extension of time on account of the applicant's failure to satisfactorily explain the non-compliance of O. 53 r. 3(6), I will proceed to consider the other grounds raised by the learned Senior Federal Counsel why this court ought not to grant leave.

Jurisdiction

[14] To my mind the first question is whether the issue of jurisdiction ought to be considered at the leave stage. I am guided by the judgment of James Foong JCA (as His Lordship then was) in the case of Chin Mee Keong & Ors v. Pesuruhjaya Sukan [2007] 5 CLJ 363 wherein His Lordship dealt with the question whether the court ought to consider the issue of availability of alternative remedy at the leave stage. His Lordship opined that to summarily assign the issue of alternative remedy after leave has been granted would mean that the issue of availability of an alternative remedy would automatically be permitted at leave stage and to ignore the issue at leave stage and to proceed to the second stage after leave has been granted would go against established principles. His Lordship said:

> I am aware that this court in QSR Brands Bhd v. Suruhanjaya Sekuriti & Anor [2006] 2 CLJ 532, has gone as far as to declare:
> In the light of these weighty authorities, it is manifestly clear that it is only at the hearing of the substantive motion for judicial review that the existence of an alternative remedy becomes relevant. A fortiori, it is a matter which does not fall to be considered on a leave application.
> But I am not inclined to accept such a wide proposition in the light of the authorities disclosed. This is too broad an interpretation given to the cases cited. To summarily assign this issue of an alternative remedy to a subsequent stage for consideration after leave has been granted would, in my view, mean that even cases which are bound to fail in limine on the issue of availability of an alternative remedy would automatically be permitted at leave stage. It must be reminded that there are only limited exceptions to the general rule that judicial review is not available where there is an alternative remedy by way of appeal. And to ignore this at leave stage and allow all cases of such nature to proceed to the second stage after leave is granted would go beyond established principles particularly that of Mohamed Nordin bin Johan v. Attorney General, Malaysia (supra) which is a Federal Court case and the Supreme Court decision in J.P. Berthelsen v. Director-General of Immigration, Malaysia & Ors [1986] 2 CLJ 409; [1986] CLJ (Rep) 160 which repeatedly states that the test is whether the application for leave is frivolous to merit the refusal of leave in limine. In my view, if the issue of an alternative remedy is raised at leave stage, it must still be considered in the light of this established test rather than leaving it completely for evaluation at the substantive hearing of the motion of certiorari after leave has been granted.

In the same case Low Hop Bing JCA in his dissenting judgment said:

> I am of the view that the High Court is at liberty and indeed duty bound to consider any point raised, including the alternative remedy point, at the first stage of leave application under O. 53 r. 3(1). The consideration of whether leave should be granted or > refused in limine involves an exercise of discretion. That discretion must be exercised according to established judicial principles, having regard to all the facts and circumstances of each particular case.

Based on the aforementioned authority it is my considered opinion that I am obliged to consider the issue of jurisdiction raised by learned Senior Federal Counsel at this stage.

[15] In support of submissions that leave ought not to be granted, learned Senior Federal Counsel submits that this court is not the proper court to hear this matter as the subject matter of the application, ie, whether the applicant is a Muslim, falls within the realm of Syariah Law. Therefore the proper court to decide is the Syariah Court (Dalip Kaur Gurbux Singh v. Pegawai Polis Daerah (OCPD), Bukit Mertajam & Anor [1991] 3 CLJ 2768; [1991] 1 CLJ (Rep) 77; Soon Singh Bikar Singh v. Pertubuhan Kebajikan Islam Malaysia (PERKIM) Kedah & Anor [1999] 2 CLJ 5; Kamariah Ali lwn. Kerajaan Negeri Kelantan, Malaysia & Satu Lagi Dan Rayuan Yang Lain [2002] 3 CLJ 766).

[16] In Soon Singh Bikar Singh v. Pertubuhan Kebajikan Islam Malaysia (PERKIM) Kedah & Anor (supra) the Federal Court dealt with the jurisdictional question of which court is competent to make a declaration that a Muslim has converted out of Islam. Mohamed Dzaiddin FCJ (as he then was) said:

> ... it does seem inevitable that since matters on conversion to Islam come under the jurisdiction of the Syariah courts, by implication conversion out of Islam should also fall under the jurisdiction of the same courts.

The case of Soon Singh has been affirmed by the Federal Court in Lina Joy v. Majlis Agama Islam Wilayah Persekutuan & Yang Lain [2007] 3 CLJ 557 as good law.

[17] The application made by the applicant to the 1st respondent is premised on his contention that he is not a Muslim though he was born to a Muslim father. The applicant states that his mother is a Hindu and his parents were never married according to Muslim rites. He states that he was never raised as a Muslim and has never professed the religion of Islam. I agree with the learned Senior Federal Counsel that the matters raised by the applicant in support of his contention that he is not a Muslim are matters to

A be considered and proved before the Syariah Court in accordance with Hukum Syarak. In Kaliammal Sinnasamy v. Pengarah Jabatan Agama Islam Wilayah Persekutuan & Yang Lain [2006] 1 CLJ 753, Raus Sharif J (as His Lordship then was) said:

B > Saya juga berpendapat bahawa walaupun pemohon melalui afidavit-afidavit yang difailkan cuba menunjukkan bahawa simati dalam tempoh yang dikatakan simati telah memeluk agama Islam, telah mengambil bahagian dalam upacara keagamaan Hindu, dan melakukan perkara yang bertentangan dengan agama Islam atau tidak melakukan perkara seperti yang sepatutnya dilakukan oleh
C > orang Islam, tetapi perkara-perkara tersebut adalah persoalan mengenai undang-undang Islam. Sekali lagi bidangkuasa untuk menentukan perkara-perkara seperti itu adalah Mahkamah Syariah dan bukan Mahkamah Sivil.

D For the reasons stated I agree with the learned Senior Federal Counsel that this court has no jurisdiction to determine the matters raised by the applicant in support of his contention that he is not a Muslim.

[18] Learned Senior Federal Counsel further submits that the
E Court of Appeal in Lina Joy v. Majlis Agama Islam Wilayah Persekutuan & Ors [2005] 4 CLJ 666 has held that the policy of the 1st respondent that a mere statutory declaration is insufficient for it to remove the word "Islam" from the identity card of a Muslim is perfectly reasonable. On this basis it is submitted that
F the 1st respondent has not acted unlawfully and the application is frivolous and vexatious. I agree with the submissions. At the Federal Court (Lina Joy lwn. Majlis Agama Islam Wilayah Persekutuan & Yang Lain [2007] 3 CLJ 557) three questions were posed for determination by the Federal Court as follows:

G

> (a) Adakah Jabatan Pendaftaran Negara (JPN) berhak, mengikut undang-undang, mengenakan syarat supaya perayu mengemukakan suatu sijil atau suatu pengisytiharan atau perintah daripada Mahkamah Syariah yang memperakukan
H > bahawa beliau adalah murtad sebelum perkataan "Islam" di dalam Kad Pengenalan (KP) perayu dipadamkan (deleted)?
> (b) Adakah JPN telah dengan betulnya mentafsirkan kuasanya di bawah Kaedah-Kaedah Pendaftaran Negara 1990 (Kaedah-Kaedah 1990) khususnya k. 4 dan k. 14, untuk mengenakan
I > syarat seperti yang tersebut di atas manakala ianya tidak diperuntukkan dengan secara jelasnya di dalam Kaedah-Kaedah 1990 itu?

(c) Adakah kes Soon Singh a/l Bikar Singh lwn. Pertubuhan Kebajikan Islam Malaysia (PERKIM) Kedah & Anor [1999] 2 CLJ 5 telah diputuskan dengan betulnya apabila ia mengguna pakai teori bidangkuasa tersirat yang dikemukakan di dalam kes Md Hakim Lee lwn. Majlis Agama Islam Wilayah Persekutuan, Kuala Lumpur [1997] 4 CLJ Supp 419 dan tidak mengikut kes Ng Wan Chan lwn. Majlis Agama Islam Wilayah Persekutuan & Anor (No 2) [1991] 3 CLJ 328 (Rep); [1991] 2 CLJ 1559; [1991] 3 MLJ 487 dan Lim Chan Seng lwn. Pengarah Jabatan Agama Islam Pulau Pinang dan 1 kes yang lain [1996] 3 CLJ 231 yang mengisytiharkan bahawa sekiranya tidak ada bidangkuasa yang jelas yang diberikan kepada Mahkamah Syariah, maka Mahkamah-Mahkamah Sivil hendaklah mengekalkan bidangkuasa mereka?

Ahmad Fairuz CJ in delivering the judgment of the court answered the three questions as follows:

(a) JPN berhak;

(b) JPN betul; dan

(c) Kes Soon Singh telah diputuskan dengan betulnya.

His Lordship said:

> Di peringkat ini, adalah wajar bagi saya untuk menyatakan persetujuan saya dengan bahagian penghakiman majoriti yang menyatakan bahawa apa yang JPN mahu ialah suatu perakuan dari seseorang yang mempunyai kuasa untuk membuatnya dan jika JPN bertindak mengikut perakuan itu, maka JPN adalah bebas dari sebarang kesilapan atau disalahkan oleh awam dalam perkara yang sebegitu mustahak dan sensitif. Justeru itu penghakiman majoriti memutuskan bahawa ketidakrelaan JPN bertindak tanpa perakuan pihak berkuasa agama lslam adalah munasabah.
> Dalam hal keadaan sedemikian, saya bersetuju dengan penghujahan peguam terpelajar responden-responden kedua dan ketiga bahawa syarat supaya suatu sijil atau perisytiharan atau perintah daripada Mahkamah Syariah bahawa perayu telah jadi murtad bukanlah suatu keputusan yang tidak munasabah sehinggakan sebegitu melampau dalam keingkaran terhadap logik atau standard moral yang diterima hingga tiada seorang yang waras yang telah menumpukan pemikirannya kepada persoalan yang perlu diputuskan itu boleh mencapai keputusan itu.

A Dan apa yang telah dilakukan oleh pegawai JPN adalah hanya semata-mata untuk menentukan Perayu bukan lagi beragama Islam secara yang ditetapkan oleh Islam. Justeru itu, saya tidak nampak bagaimana tindakan itu boleh dikatakan bertentangan dengan Perkara 11(1) yang dengan sendirinya memperuntukkan keperluan mematuhi kehendak-kehendak agama itu sebelum dia keluar dari agama Islam. Menganuti dan mengamalkan agama Islam sudah tentu bererti mengamalkan bukan saja aspek teologi dalam agama itu tapi juga undang-undang agama itu. (emphasis added)

C Therefore on the authority of the decision of the Federal Court in Lina Joy the decision of the 1st respondent is not unreasonable and is therefore not amenable to an order of certiorari. I agree with the learned Senior Federal Counsel that this application is frivolous and vexatious and leave ought not to be granted.

D [19] Counsel for the applicant submits that in another case with similar facts (R4-216-2009) leave to apply for judicial review had been granted. I have perused the case file and in that case leave was granted by another judge. I am of the view that irrespective of the other case, I am not precluded from considering and making a decision on the issue whether or not leave ought to be granted on the facts of this case.

E

Conclusion

F [20] For the reasons adumbrated above in respect of the application for extension of time, I allowed the objection raised by the Attorney-General. The application is therefore dismissed. In the event that I erred in refusing the application for extension of time, for the reasons stated above I find that leave ought not to G be granted. Costs of RM500 is awarded to the Attorney-General.
